Excerpt of pertinent information

"Since the first of the year when the Germans not only placed DARNAND at the head of the militia with instructions to be merciless, but also used their own troops to round up 'the boys in the bush', it was feared that this would mean disruption of the resistance movement as an organized entity. . . .

Note for the Censor: This article is destined for the Saturday Evening Post. It is not a newspaper dispatch. Nor is it destined to be printed as coming from Switzerland....

". . . All France thumbs its nose at Bureaucracy, or did until Joseph DARNAND, Vichy's Himmler, took a hand with his summary courts. But even he is near admitting failure. When the German's act, of course, it is another matter - peremptory and ruthless. But in their case also, opposition on the material plane has fortified resistance on the spiritual. Yet it is all incoherent."
